

Attorney says petitions needed before annexation

Any action or discussion of annexation by the Amarillo School District of 11½ sections of land now in the Canyon School District is premature until and unless a petition requesting such action is presented.

That's the opinion of local attorney Elton Cox, retained by the Canyon board to study the annexation issue, particularly in light of a legal opinion rendered by an Amarillo attorney for the Amarillo School Board.

Citing state law, Cox said it is his opinion that no action can be taken by the Amarillo district to annex the land until a petition signed by a majority of the qualified voters living on the 11½ sections of land is presented.

Likewise, the Canyon board can make no monetary deal with the Amarillo board for the annexation until a petition is presented.

So far, no petition concerning the 11½ sections of land just south of the district boundary lines in South Amarillo have been presented any board.

Cox cited article 19.261 of the Texas Education Code:

"(a) The county school trustees or county board of education, as the case may be, in each county of this state shall have the authority, when duly petitioned as herein provided and in compliance with the limitations of Subchapter K of this chapter, to detach from and annex to any school district territory contiguous to the common boundary line of the two districts. . ."

Cox said the law states clearly the action can come "when duly petitioned."

The local school board received a petition from a South Amarillo developer at their last meeting requesting that about 50 acres of land along the Canyon expressway be annexed into the Amarillo district.

The 50-acre tract, developed by Glenn O'Dell, is not in the 11½ section tract which the Canyon and Amarillo boards have been discussing for nearly a year.

O'Dell is scheduled to take his petition to the Randall County school trustees Thursday for their consideration.

Apparently, according to Cox, the law provides (See PETITIONS, Page 4)

Lighthouse now park property

The famed Lighthouse formation, long virtually a trademark for the Palo Duro Canyon, has been purchased by the state to become an official part of the canyon state park.

The Lighthouse was purchased recently along with 1000 acres of canyon rim and floor property primarily at the western end of the canyon, according to Elon Baker, park superintendent.

While for years the rock structure has been on public view to foot traffic, it is now officially part of the state park which encompasses only the western end of the 120-mile long canyon.

photographs in many state and regional magazines and on promotional material for the city and the area, the Lighthouse will remain open to foot traffic for the time being, Baker said.

Baker said 1000 other acres of land were purchased in the deal including the area around the Lighthouse and land in the Sunday Canyon area.

He said only land from the rim of the canyon and the floor was purchased. No top land was included in the deal.

Plans for possible development of the Lighthouse area into a more accessible area could be forthcoming in the not-too-distant future, Baker said.

During the next three months, state officials are to begin work on a master plan for the park.

The master plan will include long-range planning for improvement to all aspects of the park.

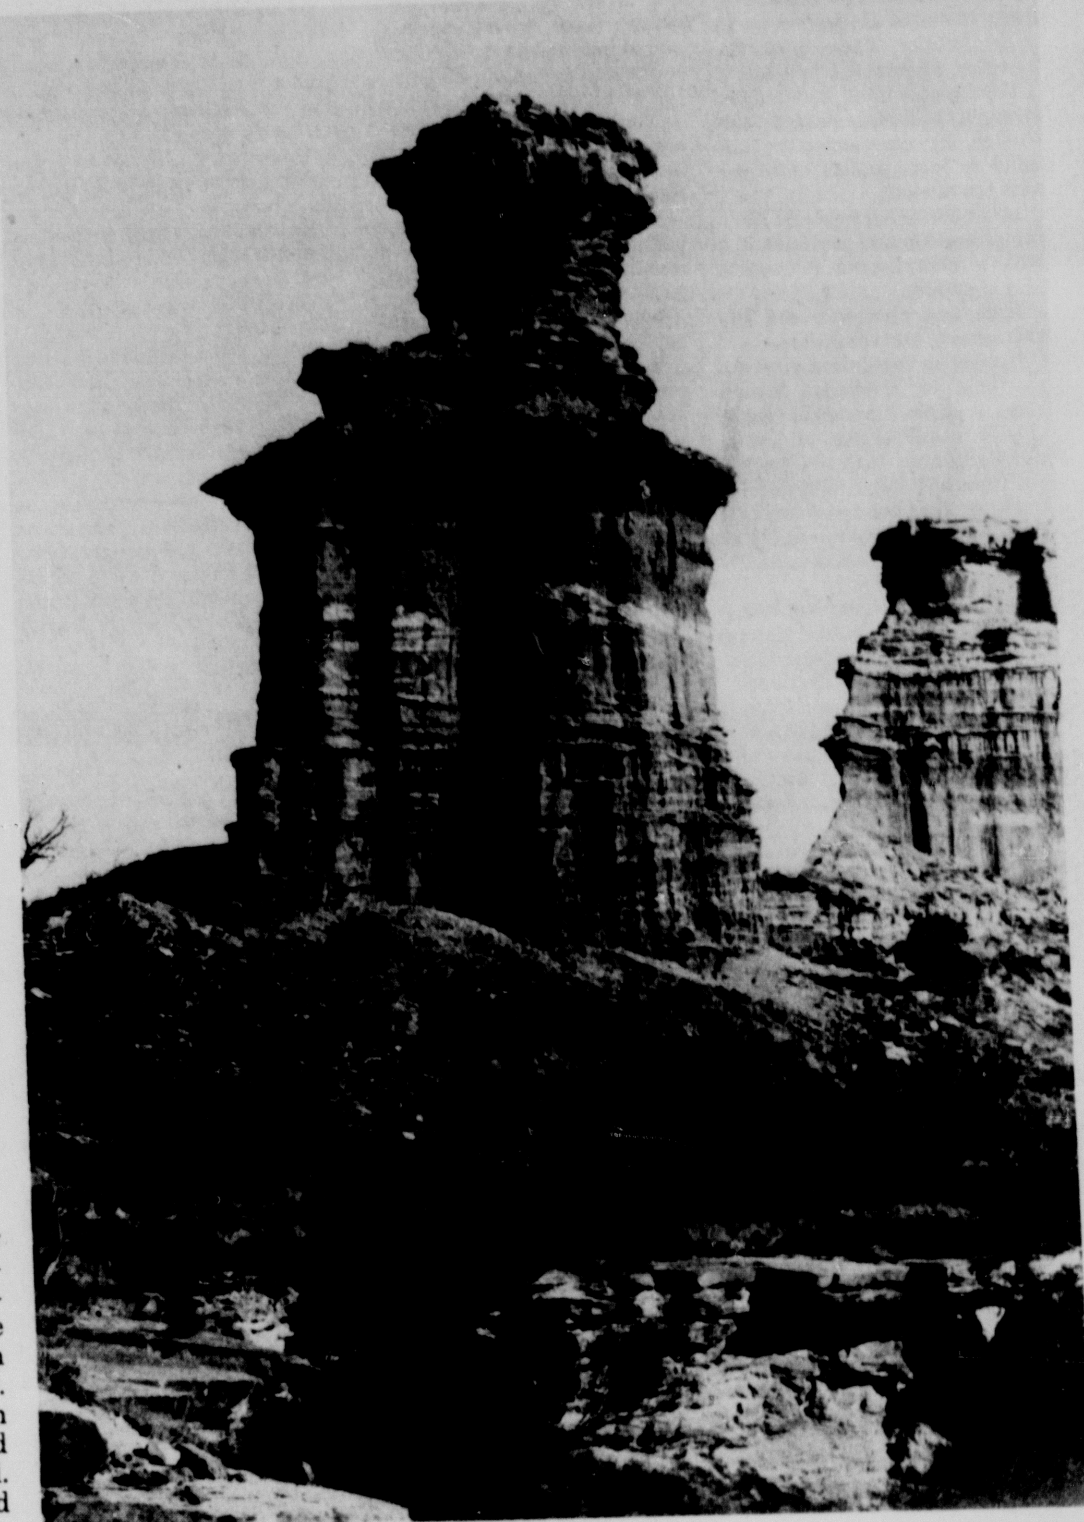

Baker said he does not know if the plans will include construction of an all-weather road to the Lighthouse area.

He said no plans are currently in the mill for more acquisition of property adjacent to the current park area.

Currently, park visitors can see the Lighthouse formation and that area of the canyon only on foot or horseback.

Baker said no camping or other activities are allowed in the Lighthouse area.

No exemptions are yet sought from city taxes

No Canyon residents 65 years of age or older have yet signed up for a $3000 tax exemption on their homesteads.

Tax assessor-collector Conway Kuykendall said Thursday only a handful of persons have called to inquire about the exemption and no one has applied for the exemption.

"One woman called in but she was only 62," he said.

Kuykendall said persons 65 and over who own a homestead in Canyon are eligible for the exemption. But, they must make application before April 30 to receive the exemption on this year's taxes.

Proof of age and ownership of property must be brought to the city tax office by an applicant in order to fulfill the requirements of the application.

City Manager George Louder said the city had expected to lose about $13,000 through the awarding of tax exemptions to the city's elderly homeowners.

He noted that if persons have a homestead here assessed for tax purposes at worth less than $3000, those persons will still have to pay some taxes to cover bonded indebtedness of the city.

For example, he said, about 13 per cent of the $3000 exemption is still subject to taxation due to bonded indebtedness requirements of the city.

He said city bonds issued require that no persons be exempt from taxation to retire the bonds.

City commissioners passed the $3000 tax exemption during 1973 following passage of a Texas constitutional amendment allowing taxing jurisdictions to give the exemptions. So far the city is the only taxing jurisdiction in Randall County to approve the exemptions.

Randall County commissioners passed a motion at their last Monday meeting expressing their intention to pass a resolution this Monday giving the exemption to county residents.

School Board members have expressed lack of interest in granting the exemptions. City commissioners met with school board members on the issue in 1973 and school board members were hesitant to go along with the plan.

The school board estimated it would lose about $30,000 annually through granting of exemptions.

Petitions seeking the exemptions were circulated throughout the city and in parts of the county and were presented to the three governing bodies.

Big tax return mystery solved

Vacationing state officials solved the mystery of the mammoth sales tax return check for Canyon last week.

City Manager George Louder, who received in mid-December a sales tax return check for $33,483 for retail sales in July, August and September, said the large amount of the check was due to the results of an audit of one Canyon business which he said had not been paying sales tax.

Louder said state officials told him the firm had to pay $11,000 during the quarter to make up for back sales tax monies not turned in following an audit by state auditors.

The $11,000, he said, accounts for the inflated figure which left local merchants and chamber of commerce officials with mouths agape wondering how local business had risen so phenomenally during the year's third quarter.

"It was up," Louder said of the quarter. "But, that ($11,000) was in penalty and interest on the firm."

A truer picture of Canyon retail growth during the quarter was revealed once the $11,000 is subtracted from the $33,000 check.

"That's still up about 23 per cent," Louder said.

Locals support Metro board in resolutions on unit future

Local officials last week backed the action of the board of governors of the Metro Intelligence Unit taken Thursday morning to perpetuate the unit under the auspices of the Potter County sheriff's office.

The board of the squad voted Thursday to continue operation of the unit, provided approval is given by the state Criminal Justice Council.

Their action followed by a week issuance of a report from a consulting firm which recommended Amarillo withdraw its support of the elite unit.

Dist. Atty. George Dowlen backed the resolution passed by the governors and derogated the report of the consulting firm, a report he characterized as sounding as if it had been written by Ed Sullivan.

Dowlen said the consulting firm's report "was so full of inaccuracies it was ridiculous."

He quoted the report as saying "The Metro Unit is not making enough really big cases."

Randall County Sheriff Cliff Longest concurs with Dowlen that the unit is a much-needed adjunct to law enforcement in the Amarillo-Canyon area.

"We definitely need a unit of this type but it needs to be freer and not controlled by one participating agency," he said.

Canyon City Manager George Louder also backed Canyon's participation in the unit on a limited basis.

He said for the past several months, Canyon's man on the squad has been working primarily on cases in Canyon.

Louder said the city has received benefits from its participation in the unit and that the unit should continue as recommended.

He said he would not favor a competitive unit operating in addition to a unit based in the Amarillo Police Department.

The board of governors recommendations included the following:

* That upon the expiration of the present Metro Unit grant at the end of April 1974 this Unit be continued under a new grantee with the following Modifications:

* That the Unit Coordinator be employed by the Board of Governors of the Unit to serve the Unit independently of employment by any single participating agency, and that the present coordinator, Capt. J.T. Carver, be first offered the opportunity to accept such employment.

* That the location of the Metro Intelligence Unit office be situated in a location other than the building of a participating member.

* That the chairmanship of (See METRO, Page 4)

County saving money for loop

For years Randall County commissioners have been socking away money for use in purchasing right-of-way land for construction of Loop 335 around Amarillo and it appears that money will be set aside for many more years before the loop is ever completed.

Nearly $100,000 is in a special county fund for use to buy right-of-way land for the loop and County Judge Woody Pond said more will be added each year to draw interest until the right-of-way must be purchased.

According to Texas Highway Department officials, that time may be as much as two decades in the future.

No strict timetable is set for completion of the loop, one-half of which lies in Randall County, according to Ed Timmons of the highway department district office.

Construction of the loop hinges on several intangibles, such as availability of federal highway funds, which are more and more in use for mass transit systems, and availability of state funds. Nevertheless, highway department officials are hoping for a July bid opening for construction of one leg of the loop, a leg in Potter County.

Other sections of the loop will be built if funds are available on the basis of traffic needs.

Timmons anticipates that the (See COUNTY, Page 4)

Grand jury to eye WT?

A new panel of the Randall County Grand Jury will be impaneled Monday by 47th Dist. Court Judge Gene Jordan, and it was not known at week's end whether the new jury would be asked to take another look at the so-called "WT Investigation."

Dist. Atty. George Dowlen said it is the responsibility of the last grand jury to make the request of the new grand jury.

Jim Underwood of Canyon, foreman of the grand jury until Monday, was unavailable for (See JURY, Page 4)

Archie Dean Davis, city department head, examines the new yield signs which will be erected at intersections in Canyon as soon as possible. Every intersection in the city is to be marked either with a yield sign or stop sign when the project is complete. Right now, according to City Manager George Louder, the hold-up is obtaining poles for the signs.

Controversies outlined for constitution change

Canyon area State Sen. Max Sherman and Rep. Bryan Poff are en route to Austin this weekend to prepare for the opening session Tuesday of the Texas constitutional convention and Sherman sees several controversial issues already raising their heads out of the proposed Constitutional Revision Commission document.

Sherman left Saturday for Austin, where he and Poff will sit as members of the convention which will draw up a new Texas constitution for presentation to voters some time this year.

Sherman said he expects the convention to last about 90 days with Price Daniel Jr., speaker of the Texas House, as convention chairman.

The first week of the convention will be taken up with house-keeping duties and speeches from state officials like Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Committee appointments will also be made during this first week and Sherman said he hopes to be named to several committees including the committee on the Executive, the committee on Local Government and the Committee on Finance.

He also hopes to be named to the committee on style, a committee which will decide how the new constitution is to be submitted to the voters.

Sherman believes the convention members will center their work around the proposed constitution compiled by members of the Texas Constitution Revision Commission.

"So much work went into it and they held so many public hearings around the state, I don't think the public would favor our rejecting the proposal and starting over," Sherman said.

One of the primary areas of controversy Sherman sees in the rewriting of the constitution will be the section on the judiciary, a section hotly attacked by Texas county judges particularly since (See CHANGE, Page 4)

Our World

Man's World, Woman's Place

By ANN BROWN

A relatively few women are clamoring for roles divinely assigned to men. The noise they make is out of all proportion to their number. Their influence, however, affects all women.

The Creator made men bigger, stronger, and more rugged than women. He commanded the husband to love, protect, and provide for his wife.

In return for her husband's loving protection and provision, the wife is commanded to respect and obey him.

Love and obedience are like two sides of the same coin.

If there is contention whether the love or obedience should come first, isn't it logical that it should begin where all directions originate: with the head?

Without a head, a body cannot function. And two heads make a creature equally worthless. Nothing with two heads has ever survived.

Women who insist on being head of the house either destroy the homes they rule, or reduce their husbands to less than men.

Our Creator did not make woman from man's head that she should rule over him, nor from his foot that he might walk on her, but from his rib so she could walk by his side.

God commanded man to love and cherish his wife as his own flesh. However, only God-fearing men, as a rule, have done so. In the pre-Christian era (and currently in non-Christian lands), women were mere chattels — worth a little more than a dog, a little less than a cow.

It was Jesus Christ who elevated women to the pedestal they still occupy in Christian societies. God never approved the degradation of women; Jesus merely emphasized that fact.

But woman was created as man's helper — not his manager. Almost every time God needed a great man He began with a great woman. Moses, Samuel, John the Baptist, and even Jesus exhibited the same sterling qualities first found in their mothers.

The Creator ordained specific roles for men and women. None of these roles can be reversed successfully; many are not reversible at all. Sex cannot be confined to the bedroom; it permeates every area of life.

It is understandable that women who are as productive as men in the business and professional world should expect the same compensation. Why not?

There is nothing in the Bible or the Constitution to challenge a woman's right to equal pay for equal services rendered. The denial of this right for centuries has embittered many women.

But for women to want their just due is one thing, and to demand something they were never entitled to is something else.

Why do women who profess to be Christians clamor for positions that the Bible, the Christian's only authentic guide for faith and practice, reserves for men?

A few women have charged that churches discriminate against women when they refuse to ordain them as preachers and deacons.

But it is the Bible that requires pastors and deacons to "be the husbands of one wife, ruling their children and their own houses well." That does not sound like a qualification any woman could attain.

Does the Bible discriminate against women?

If the Bible is unfair to women, and it is accepted as the word of God, would that not make God unfair to women?

Does any Christian feel competent to sit in judgment on his Creator?

The primary duty of pastors and deacons is to teach the Bible. Could anyone who is convinced a book is biased and unfair teach it effectively?

When women manage to equalize their stature with that of men, and share the role of childbearing, they will probably be able to function successfully as deacons and pastors.

The happiest women in the world are cherished wives and mothers who are grateful for a role that enables them to contribute so much to the comfort and happiness of the people dearest to them.

County To Eye Open Meet Law

Randall County's elected officials will gather in commissioners court at 2 p.m. Monday to hear a presentation by Dist. Atty. George Dowlen on the new Texas Open Meetings Law.

The new law, which went into effect Jan. 1, pertains to public access to decision-making procedures during open meetings.

Regular session of commissioners court begins at 1 p.m. and main item of discussion will be consideration of salary increases for all county employees including elected officials.

A 5.5 per cent raise has been budgeted this year for the employees.

Mrs. Audrey Bruse, tax assessor-collector for Randall County, is expected to request hiring of

Feb. 1 Seen As Date For 55 MPH Speed

The Texas Highway Commission will meet in public hearing Tuesday in Austin to consider changing the speed limit on Texas highways to 55 miles per hour, but local officials aren't sure a definite decision will come out of the meeting.

Ed Timmons of the district highway department office said if the commission decides to set the speed limit at 55 miles per hour, the action must go to the governor for consideration since the speed would be below the 60 miles per hour speed set by the legislature in special session.

Then, Texans will have to wait 21 days following any gubernatorial action before the speed limit will go into effect, Timmons said.

He said he doesn't expect the new speed limit to become effective until around Feb. 1.

Already, he said, highway department officials are ordering a plastic-type material to cover the old highway speed limit signs, which give a maximum speed of 70 miles per hour, with a new speed declaration of 55 miles per hour.

The Rise And Fall Of The Hairy Chest

By CARROLL WILSON

Just outside the cabin's front door, between the clear-running spring and the cattle tank, was the cantaloup patch.

After a day of fishing in the tank under a sweltering Oklahoma sun, my brother and I and Uncle Basil walked slowly back to the cabin, our cane poles over our shoulders and with no fish to show for a day of relaxation.

A long swig of the icy spring water from a metal cup quenched the thirst but not the hunger, and our hands in his, Basil led us to the cantaloup patch.

"Pick out a good 'un," he said, and then showed us how to thump and smell for a ripe fruit.

Sitting Indian-style in the sandy soil with the sweet smell of ripe cantaloup smothering that of the almost-stagnant cattle tank, my brother and I used Basil's pocket knife to halve the little melons.

"Eat 'em up boys," Basil said. "They'll put hair on your chest."

As pre-adolescents, the fact that cantaloup would put hair on our chests far outweighed the aroma or our hunger as motivation for devouring a good portion of Basil's cantaloup crop.

The wisdom of Basil's words came back to me when, as a slight seventh grader, I noticed in the mirror one day three or four tiny hairs sprouting on my chest.

There is a certain amount of male vanity tied up in hair. The male image of dominance, of strength, of manliness itself, is manifest in a hairy chest. Paul Bunyan, without doubt, had a hairy chest.

Friend Woodburn, whose chest is as hairless as my infant daughter's behind, claims he's eaten cantaloup for years to no avail. He discounts Basil's wisdom. But, he's never eaten Oklahoma-sweet cantaloup right out of the field.

My wife says derisively that hairy-chested males are evolutionary throwbacks to the apes. Second cousins to chimps, she says.

Nevertheless, men like to have hair. Note the embarrassment males exhibit when they begin to go bald.

Embarrassment is the first reaction of a slightly balding male. Then, he tries new hair styles to cover up the fact.

Then, when all is lost, he faces the world with nude noggin and suffers through the clever one-liners of still-endowed brethren — the "Hey, turn the other way. The reflection's blinding me" kind of jokes.

Frankly, while I've worried about going bald above the neck, I've never given much thought to a bald chest.

Not until Friday, when I went through one of those insufferable and torturous sessions medical doctors contrive to convince people they're getting their money's worth from a 30-minute visit.

"Take off your shirt," said the nurse, "and lay down up here."

Fumbling in a drawer next to the familiar padded table, she pulled out an electric razor.

"I've got to shave your chest," she said with a faint glimmer of anticipation.

"You gotta be kidding," I responded.

She wasn't.

With an unbelievably blasé attitude, she set about to denude my cantaloup-fed chest, its growth nurtured for years.

I'm just old enough to be a man and grow hair on my chest, I thought, and now, with incredible nonchalance this strange woman is shaving my chest!

I was honestly embarrassed and more than a little irritated that nobody had forewarned me of this outrage in time for me to back out.

"I can't believe you're shaving my chest," I said.

"Yep," she clucked. "Taking away all your manliness."

How much worse than the fact that she was shaving my chest was the fact that she knew what she was doing.

She didn't even say she was sorry.

My visit to the doctor complete, I slipped on my shirt and noticed immediately that I could FEEL the shirt on my chest. What a disturbing feeling, a feeling akin to the feeling one gets when one concentrates on the fact that he has a tongue taking up residence in his mouth.

"Just wait 'till it starts growing out again," the nurse said with a smile. "Boy, will it itch."

I walked into the cold afternoon air and learned the important function all that chest hair has performed. It keeps me warm.

I wrote my Uncle Basil today enclosing a check for postage, and to pay for the fruit of his next cantaloup crop.

Political intelligence: Judge E.E. "Gene" Jordan of the 47th District Court will announce Monday that he won't seek another term.

Jordan's announcement is expected to send several young attorneys in Canyon and Amarillo into a tailspin of political activity.

State Rep. Bryan Poff is unabashedly saying that he'd like to run for district judge.

O.M. Calhoun has already filed for the office.

West Texas State University watchers will be interested in keeping an eye on the paper for the next few weeks to learn of the resignation of one of the university's vice presidents.

Financial Vice President Virgil Henson is due to retire at the end of the school year.

But, another of the VPs is reportedly reading his resignation. He's eyeing a school superintendent job downstate.

City Crime Record Stable In 1973

Crime stayed on an even keel in Canyon during 1973 as compared to 1972 with minor crimes decreasing somewhat and major crimes remaining static.

No murders were reported in Canyon during the year while one attempted rape was recorded. No robberies were attempted.

Nine aggravated assaults were recorded by city police for the year.

Police Lt. Tom Rolen said figures indicate the city had 24 burglaries during the year and nine narcotics violations.

Minor crimes went down in some instances for the year when compared with 1972.

Twenty-nine driving while intoxicated charges were filed in 1973 compared to 36 filed in 1972.

A big drop came in charges filed for minors in possession or consuming alcoholic beverages with only 23 recorded for 1973 compared to 60 recorded for 1972. The drop was attributed to a change in the law on drinking age for young people.

Assaults totalled 13 in 1973 compared to 11 for 1972 and thefts totalled 65 for 1973 compared to 51 for 1972.

No traffic fatalities were recorded for the city during the year.

A total of 285 accidents were recorded compared to 259 for 1972 and 34 accidents in 1973 involved injuries compared to 15 which involved injuries in 1972.

Officers issued 1677 traffic citations during the year compared to 1621 during 1972.

The department received 890 complaints during the year compared to 898 for 1972.

Schools Open Monday

The holiday tempo subsides in serious Monday when Canyon public school students return to classes after an over two-week Christmas recess.

Students can look forward to upcoming holidays on Feb. 4 and March 1, which have been designated as teacher in-service days, and an Easter vacation slated April 6-15.

Quarter examinations will be administered to students Feb. 25-28. The third quarter of the school year will end on May 31.

Boxing Tourney This Weekend

Canyon boxers will host their own tournament for two nights next weekend here.

Bouts begin at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the boxing club gym, 801 23rd Street.

Teams from Lefors, Plainview, Stinnett, Borger and Clarendon are expected to fight in the tourney.

Admission will be $1.50 for adults and $1 for children.

Tickets for the tournament are available from members of the Noon Lions Club, the Randall County sheriff's office, Canyon Police Department, WTSU bookstore, Shell's Pharmacy, Anthony's, Taylor & Sons Food, and the Village Inn.

The teams will compete in five classes of competition for individual as well as team trophies.

Boys 11 and under who weigh between 55 and 90 pounds will fight in one class, the junior division.

The intermediate division pits boys who weigh 75 to 119 pounds and who are 12-13 years of age. The senior division is for boys 14-15 who weigh 90 to 165 pounds.

Boys 16-19 who weigh 105-175 will compete in the high school division and the open division is for men over 19 years of age who weigh 112-175.

Individual trophies will be awarded for winners and runners-up of each weight division. A sportsmanship trophy, outstanding boxer trophy and team trophy will also be awarded.

Canyon boxing coach is Zeke Clement.

Mark Mayberry, player in two varsity games for the West Texas State University Buffaloes this basketball season, failed to return to the university for Thursday night's game with Hardin-Simmons.

Coach Ron Ekker said the 6-1 freshman from Detroit told him by telephone that he would not return to the school or team.

"I don't want to put words in Mark's mouth, but he indicated to us on the telephone that he wasn't especially pleased with this section of the country and wanted to attend school closer to home," Ekker said.

Petitions . . .

that the decision is to be made by the county trustees. R.B. Gist Jr. is currently chairman of the board of county trustees.

It must also be approved by a majority of the members of the Amarillo School Board.

Early in 1973, Amarillo board members without a petition effort began discussions with Canyon board members about the annexation of the 11 1/2 sections of land in the north part of the county.

Canyon board members have been reluctant to part with the property.

Amarillo Attorney
Robert A. Wilson, attorney for the Amarillo school district, told Canyon board members that a monetary reimbursement for tax funds lost through annexation can be made to the Canyon district in the event of annexation.

Cox said there appears to be ample precedence in various court cases for a county board of school trustees denying annexation of property by a district.

Likewise, he said, there is ample precedent for such trustee action to be upheld by the state commissioner for education.

Cox said there is apparently a method of appeal of decisions made by the county board of trustees. That appeal route leads to the commissioner of education and then to the state board of education, he said.

He said there is also ample precedent that one school district cannot annex a large amount of land just to have it within the district for future developments.

But, until a petition is produced from the qualified voters of the 11 1/2 sections of land wanted by Amarillo, the whole affair is moot, Cox said.

County . . .

Randall County legs would be among the last to be constructed.
Already part of one leg of the route has been completed in the county between Washington Street and the Canyon expression way just south of Amarillo.
Right-of-way for that property has already been purchased.

Timmons is hesitant to predict when the loop might be finished.
"At one time I guessed it would be finished by 1970," he said.
The loop route was proposed in 1954 and studies were authorized in 1956.

Timmons admitted it could be another 20 years before the route is ever completed.

Nevertheless, County Judge Woody Pond said he thinks the county commissioners are smart to continue laying aside money for the project.

Another $25,000 is due to be set aside this year for the purchase.
"Pretty soon we'll have more than enough and we'll put that extra money in some other funds," he said.

Pond said without the savings plan the county might have been caught short on the project.
"We're trying to be prepared so we won't be short," he said.

panel.

The last grand jury told Dist.
Judge Don Dean they recommend the investigation be reopened into certain financial dealings within the administration of West Texas State University.

The investigation was halted in December 1972 by one grand jury and not taken up again until last month.

About 11 cases are expected to be presented the grand jury Monday.
They will convene at 9 a.m.

it places judges who are not attornies out of the judiciary and makes them administrative officers only.

He thinks that when the section on the judiciary is submitted to the voters for approval several alternatives will also be proposed.

Many areas of controversy are also available in the section of the proposed constitution on general provisions.

"There's a strong effort to have a right-to-work provision placed in there," Sherman said, "and there's a division on whether to continue our prohibition of branch banking in the constitution."

Sherman said one issue which has yet to be resolved concerns what changes can be made to the bill of rights on the constitution.
The constitutional amendment calling for rewriting of the constitution prohibits the convention from altering the current bill of rights.

"But, can we add to the bill of rights?" Sherman asked. "If we can we'll probably see some issues like a bill on abortion or a right to life issue."

Attorney Files For Judge Seat

Amarillo attorney O.M. Calhoun announced last week he will seek election to the bench of the 47th District Court, which sits in Potter and Randall counties.

Calhoun, an attorney for 26 years, is the first candidate to announce for the seat now occupied by Judge E.E. Jordan, who is expected to announce his intentions on Monday.

Calhoun, a native of Vernon, attended schools in Chillicothe and graduated in 1935 from Chillicothe High School.

He worked for three years before attending the University of Texas in 1938. A three-year stint with the Air Force interrupted

Arts And Entertainment Thru The Looking Glass

By ANN MELIN

Of the thousands of films made in the past seventy years, which ones qualify as "great?"

In his book, The Great Movies, filmmaker-author William Bayer attempts to single out those flicks which truly deserve to be called "great."

Going through the reels and reels of westerns, musicals, suspense tales, period pieces and comedies, it must have been an agonizing decision for Bayer to make.

Ultimately, Bayer chose sixty films that meet the criterion for greatness because "they create a fictional world and give you access to it. They are films in whose presence you feel exaltation, whose images you find memorable, whose elements — whether a scene, a character, a performance, an idea, a way of looking at the world — move you and stamp themselves upon your memory.

"In short, they are pictures which resolve some segment of experience in some irrevocable way."

What is intriguing about Bayer's volume is its cognizance that box-office smashes like "Gone With The Wind" deserve an equal footing with film masterpieces like Ingmar Bergman's "Persona" if their characters, story and setting succeed in enveloping the viewer.

Since it made its debut in 1939, GWTW has grossed about $75 million in box office sales. Other film critics have tended to poo-poo GWTW, dismissing its unflagging popularity to mass morosity. But in his book, Bayer at last pays tribute to a film that so masterfully succeeded in moving its viewers, that they have returned to the moviehouse to see it again and again — not so much because they expect to be entertained for four hours, but because they feel almost bound to make yet another pilgrimage back to Tara to pay tribute to that belle of belles, Scarlett O'Hara, and her rogue admirer, Rhett Butler.

To do justice to the many different kinds of films that have been made, Bayer divides his volume into film genres, including westerns, intrigue and suspense, comedies, musicals, war films, adventure films, films on manners, morals and society; films about films, the cinema of personal expression, fantasy and horror, the "concerned" cinema and period films.

Some of the 60 greats are so obscure, few probably have ever seen them. Others are well-known to almost everybody.

Bayer judges each film as being the greatest within its genre. George Stevens' "Shane" and Sam Peckinpah's "The Wild Bunch" would certainly have been weeded out in a general survey of films, but within the class of westerns, they rank as two of the best.

Nor can these two flicks be exactly considered two of a kind. Actually, they are poles apart. "Shane", with its idealism and beautiful, cloud-misted sequences, creates a myth around the American West. "The Wild Bunch", with its brutal, blood-splattering scenes, thoroughly demythologizes the West as a land inhabited by guys in white hats and dudes in black ones.

Musing on the phenomenal popularity of the All-American western (and dismissing the Italian "spaghetti" western), Bayer outlines the many schools of thought that intellectualize the western and attempt to discover its appeal.

Some believe the western "provides a moral universe in which violence, supposedly so dear to Americans can be vicariously experienced without harm."

The violence of "Shane" is "clean" killing. The golden-haired protagonist is forced to kill so that good can win out over evil in the show's denouement. No one feels any squeamishness about seeing the nefarious Jack Palance bite the dust.

But "The Wild Bunch" is something else. Everyone, even the children, seem to be amoral and callous. The film defies the credo of the classic western. The characters whom the viewer follows (and therefore, identifies with most) are portrayed as the dregs of society. At show's end, the viewer sees these characters massacred in what has been described as the greatest scene of bloodshed and slaughter ever filmed.

The other school of thought on the Western contends that these films are the "everchanging mirror in which one may read a particular era's perception of itself as reflected in its view of the American past." If this proposition holds true, then some great upheaval must have taken place between the 1953 filming of "Shane" and the 1969 screening of "The Wild Bunch."

I linger on the western because it seems to be the one kind of film that most of us know so well, we all seem to qualify as critics. The French existential thinker Jean-Paul Sartre claims he's a connoisseur of a good western, but I'd wager that any man on the streets of Canyon could probably hold his own in a debate with the philosopher on the merits and flaws of such western classics as "Red River" and "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance."

Aside from the western, Bayer makes other selections for the "60 Best" that some might consider controversial. In the period film genre, he selects GWTW along with Orson Welles' "The Magnificent Ambersons," Laurence Olivier's "Henry V," Marcel Carne's "Les Enfants Du Paradis" and, interestingly enough, Arthur Penn's "Bonnie and Clyde."

The tale of the 1930's gangster and his moll qualifies as a great period piece, Bayer contends, because the director "created a mood in "Bonnie and Clyde," an evocation of the 1930s filtered through his 1960s sensibility."

In the Fantasy and Horror genre, Bayer chooses Alfred Hitchcock's "Psycho," John Frankenheimer's "The Manchurian Candidate" and Stanley Kubrick's "2001: A Space Odyssey" as among the greatest.

Bayer's explanation of the importance of "Psycho" is amusing. He cites "Psycho" as a "demagogic work by a master craftsman of the film medium, who knows precisely what he is doing and why he is doing it. To gross $15 million, to have "fun" with the camera (he spent seven days shooting from seventy camera set-ups to make the shower-murder montage), to demonstrate the power of the screen, and like Shakespeare, to please an audience."

Other controversial greats in Bayer's book include the selection of The Beatles' "A Hard Day's Night" as one of the greatest musicals, the appearance of the black comedy, *"M*A*S*H,"* among the great war films, and, probably galling to many, the appearance of "Easy Rider" among the reels of great movies on manners, morals and society.

If I was to make one criticism of Bayer's volume, it would be that he omitted one of the greatest films that can only belong in a genre by itself.

Under a hypothetical genre I would have dubbed "Films About TV," I would have placed the flick "Medium Cool." Few saw it, but those who did were floored by its implications.

Its director, Haskell Wexler, interspersed a narrative about a day in the life of a TV cameraman with actual filmed footage of the turbulent demonstrations of the 1968 Democratic Convention in Chicago.

The film says some provocative things about the place of the mass media in our lives, and contains what can only be described as the most classic statement ever made on screen (far exceeding Rhett Butler's pronouncement about not giving a damn).

While filming "Medium Cool," the cameramen were dodging the very real bottles and rocks being thrown at policemen outside the convention hall. At one point in the show, one is watching all the violence and mayhem of the riots when all of a sudden they hear a voice from off the screen yelling "Look out, Haskell! This is for REAL!"

Firemen Fight Over 160 Fires

Canyon volunteer firemen spent twice as many man hours fighting fewer fires in Randall County rural areas than they spent inside the city limits during 1973.

Figures for the year end from Fire Capt. Joe Rice indicate the firemen answered 79 alarms in the city and 71 outside of Canyon. They spent 685 man hours on city alarms and 1,519 on county alarms.

City structure fires totalled 30 for the year while car fires, grass fires and other smaller fires accounted for 49 alarms answered. Twelve county structures burned during the year while 59 other alarms to rural areas were for grass fires, car fires and other smaller fires.

Property loss to fire during the year in the city totalled about $42,580, according to Rice, with the biggest fire the burning of the West Texas State University fieldhouse.

County fires had total property loss of $103,065 during the year with several mobile homes, several houses and one expensive truck burning.

Rice said he expects the Canyon key insurance rate of 22 cents to remain in force until April or May when it will be refigured. He said the good fire credit will remain at 5 per cent for the year also.

The number of calls answered by firemen during the year was 24 above the number answered during 1972. Rice said damages for city and rural fires remained about static for the two years.

Course And Tour Available

By JULIA WHEELER

4-H Program Assistant

The 1974 National 4-H Citizenship Short Course and Heritage Tour is an exciting educational experience for 4-H members and other youth of senior high school age to come to the nation's capital and learn more about the true meaning of citizenship. Listening, learning, sharing, receiving, caring and touring combine to provide a deeper respect and understanding for our American heritage and the principles, processes and structures of the U.S. Government. Young people acquire increased motivation and skills for dealing with contemporary social issues and for taking leadership in community development, government affairs and related projects when they return home.

Each delegate will take part in mini-university workshops on contemporary issues and topics such as man's freedom and dignity, international affairs, human relations, government, ecology and conservation, family life and dating, community development, drama and creative expression.

Seventy 4-H members and four adult leaders have been granted reservations for the tour and short course in Washington, D.C. Dates for the tour are June 25 - July 9. The Texas youth will form a citizenship delegation in Dallas, Texas, June 25, 1974 for orientation and departure for Washington on the 26th. They will return to Dallas on July 9. All transportation will be by chartered Greyhound buses from Dallas. The complete course fee including lodging at the National 4-H Center and Holiday Inns, food, transportation, tuition, and spending money is $375. Field trips during the Short Course include historical Williamsburg, Virginia, a boat trip to Mt. Vernon, the Smithsonian Institute, memorials to great Americans including the Jefferson Memorial, Lincoln Memorial and Arlington National Cemetery. One full day will be devoted to visiting Congressmen's offices and touring the Capitol and Library of Congress. The delegation usually attends a live Broadway play one evening.

Applications will be available from the county Extension office after January 15, 1974 and must be returned with a $25 deposit as soon as possible. It is a wonderful educational experience for mature 4-H youth and adults.

All Around The House

By BECKY HALL

County Extension Agent

Home humidifiers can solve many of winter's unpleasant indoor conditions — extra dry throat, flakey skin, withering plants and creaky furniture joints. Low relative humidity is the cause of these maladies.

The inside of a heated house in a northern climate is actually drier than the Sahara Desert.

"The Sahara has 22 per cent relative humidity while the house has no more than 13 per cent."

When cold, dry air is brought inside the house and heated, it has a great capacity to hold water.

Warm and cold air are like sponges — cold air being the smaller sponge.

The simple and relatively inexpensive humidifier can help indoor air reach a "happy medium."

Since it adds moisture to the air, the humidifier helps reduce or eliminate peeling wallpaper, unglued furniture joints and static electricity. It helps protect valuable books, papers, recordings and paintings.

As an added bonus, the humidifier can improve home heating equipment efficiency with fuel-cost savings.

When air is too dry, a person feels cold since moisture on his skin is evaporating quickly. Thus, he is tempted to turn up the thermostat to keep the room warm.

With adequate moisture in the air, a person can feel comfortable at a lower temperature — thus less heat is required.

For every degree not required over 70 degrees F., the homeowner can save as much as three per cent on fuel.

For best results, the humidifier unit should be placed near a warm, inside wall. To insure adequate circulation, it should be positioned about six inches away from the wall.

In multi-level houses, it should be located downstairs, near an inside wall facing the stairwell.

To operate, generally water is added to a container in the humidifier, the desired humidity-level control set, and the unit turned on. Moisture is added to the air as normally in visible mist which evaporates into the house.

The appliance operates automatically, except for occasional cleaning and refilling the water container. Some units automatically draw water from the household supply.

A variety of models are available — all attractive additions to a home's decor.

Table-top models are ideal for small apartments, offices, recreation rooms or mobile homes.

All are coated for protection against rust and corrosion, and casters make mobility easy.

When choosing a humidifier, the most important consideration is its capacity rating — or number of gallons of water per day the unit can evaporate into the home's atmosphere.

An average home requires additional humidification up to 10-12 gallons of moisture daily during winter. Larger or older homes require more.

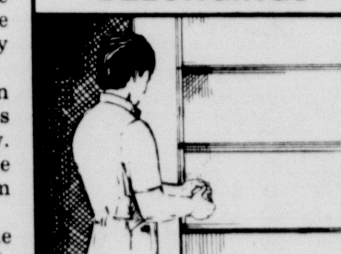

Climate also determines needs. Cold, dry areas require more moisture than areas of higher temperatures and greater outdoor humidity levels.

Humidifiers are relatively inexpensive — many cost less than $100.

They cost little more to operate than an ordinary light bulb and quickly pay for themselves by providing protection and comfort.

Whatever model chosen, the homeowner should read and follow manufacturer suggestions enclosed with each new unit.

Mrs. Larry Daniel
nee Joy McCathern

McCathern-Daniel Wed In Hereford Ceremony

Wedding vows were repeated by Joy McCathern and Larry Daniel in a double ring ceremony Jan. 5 in the First Baptist Church of Hereford, with Dr. Doug Manning officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. J.E. McCathern, Hereford, are the parents of the bride.

The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Daniel, 405 Taylor Lane.

Mrs. Ken Walser, Hereford, provided organ accompaniment for Miss Lauren Fulton, Canyon, soloist, who sang The Lord's Prayer and Buddy Roland, Canyon, soloist, who sang The Wedding Song and Entreat Me Not.

A greenery archway decked with orchid and white carnations flanked by seven branch candelabra with orchid tapers formed the background for the ceremony. Arrangements of orchid and white daisies and carnations with mums on ivory pedestals accented either side of the altar, and hurricane candles trimmed with orchid ribbon accented the family pews to complete the decorations.

Mrs. Dwayne Cassels, Hereford, was her sister's matron of honor wearing a waisted gown of light orchid velvet with a satin collar and long sleeves. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Eder, sister of the groom, Canyon, Mrs. Jerry McCathern, sister-in-law of the bride, Kansas City, Mo., and Miss Janet Frye and Miss Debra Wilson, Hereford. They wore high waisted gowns of dark velveteen with short puffed sleeves and light orchid satin collars. All the attendants wore dark purple picture hats trimmed with light orchid satin streamers and carried nosegay bouquets of purple and white daisies and carnations surrounded by baby's breath.

Miss Kristen Cassels, niece of the bride, Hereford, was flower girl and Brit York, Amarillo, was ring bearer.

Dwight Rogers, Amarillo, served as best man and groomsmen were Barry Grace, Big Spring, Darrell Smith, Canyon, Jerry Heller, Hart, and John Eder, Canyon, brother-in-law of the groom.

Ushers were Randall Burton and Steve Cataldi, Canyon.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her sister-in-law's gown of candelight crepe with an empire waist and bodice of French lace accented by seed pearl embroidery. Long sleeves of the same lace were caught at the wrist in a deep lace cuff. An attached chapel length train of matching crepe complemented the gown. Her shoulder length veil was held in place by a lace crown beaded with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white orchids with baby's breath and white satin streamers atop a white Bible carried by the groom's mother and sister in their weddings.

At a reception following the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church, the serving table was centered by a four tiered wedding cake trimmed with orchid and purple daisies and carnations. A globed orchid candle on either side of the cake added to the decorations at the reception.

For a wedding trip, the bride chose a three-piece pantsuit of brown and white tweed knit with a brown velvet tailored jacket. She wore an orchid corsage that lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will be at home at 2707 6th Ave., Canyon, after Jan. 13.

The bride is a senior music student at West Texas State University where she is a member of Chi Omega sorority. She is a 1970 graduate of Hereford High School and a member of the Amarillo Symphony.

The groom is a senior business major at WTSU where he is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. He is a 1970 graduate of Canyon High School.

Out of town guests for the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Daniel from Michigan, Mr. and Mrs. Murchison, Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Wirtz, Oklahoma, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnett, New Mexico, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Baskin, Louisiana.

Mrs. Randall Smith
nee Tonya Hester

Friendship Sewing Club Tells "What New Year Means"

The Friendship Sewing Club started off their first meeting of the year by answering roll call with a response to "What the New Year Means to Me."

A short business meeting was called to order by the hostess, Mrs. Charlie Winters, in the absence of the club president.

Following the meeting, the program included poetry about the New Year and member's favorite poems. Other members brought their handwork.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames Leonard Winters, Neil Sheets, Anne Miller, Clarence Winters, O.E. Sherer, and Charlie Winters.

The next meeting of the club is scheduled for Jan. 17 with Mrs. L.E. Hermesmeier, 7905 S. Western, Amarillo.

Cookies for the Amarillo Speech and Hearing Center are to be brought by members to the next meeting.

Couple Pledges Personal Vows

Linda Bergstresser and George Springer were joined in marriage in a double ring ceremony held Dec. 31 in the Banquet Room of the Mid-Town Holiday Inn, Amarillo. They exchanged personal vows written by themselves with Justice of the Peace Roy E. Bird officiating.

Mrs. Hosea Foster, Canyon, is the mother of the bride.

The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Berl M. Springer, Amarillo.

Recorded selections by the Beatles provided background music for the ceremony.

An archway decked with greenery and red ribbons flanked on either side by baskets of gladiolas, centered with a draped table holding a single candle, were the decorations for the ceremony.

Mrs. Richard Horton, Amarillo, was matron of honor. She wore a floor length gown of dark green velvet and carried a nosegay bouquet of roses and greenery.

Richard Horton, Amarillo, was best man.

The bride wore a floor length gown of dark green velvet overlaid with lace featuring a train of self material.

At a reception following the ceremony, the bride's table was draped in pink and centered with an arrangement of red and green.

Mrs. Ralph Burkhalter, Amarillo, Mrs. Felix Pierce, Canyon, and Mrs. Robert Hernandez, Canyon, served at the reception. Mrs. Douglass Cone, Buffalo, New York, sister of the groom, attended the guest register.

Following a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast, the couple will make their home in Amarillo.

The bride attended West Texas State University and is presently attending Amarillo College.
